EPA proposal hits family income

IMPACT OF EPA CLEAN POWER PLAN ON ANNUAL INCOME FOR A FAMILY OF FOUR

The EPA's proposed Clean Power Plan would cause significant damage to the economy. A typical family of four would see its income decline by more than $1,300 a year on average from 2020 to 2025.

Source: Heritage Foundation calculations based on data from U.S. Energy Information Administration, "Analysis of the Impacts of the Clean Power Plan: Macroeconomic," <http://www.eia.gov/oiaf/aeo/tablebrowser/> (accessed June 22, 2015).

Will the EPA's Clean Power Plan save you money?

By Rob Nikolewski
Watchdog

The Obama administration and the Environmental Protection Agency is on the verge of instituting a Clean Power Plan that would mark the first federal measure to regulate carbon dioxide emissions from the nation's existing power plants.

The EPA says the new rules will save money in the long run, but a recent study comes to a much different conclusion — estimating that 43 states will see their electricity prices increase by double-digits in the next decade, with 14 states having peak-year increases of more than 20 percent.

"You see no benefits from spending all this money and it's driving up energy prices for families," said Paul Bailey, senior vice president for federal affairs and policy at the American Coalition for Clean Coal Electricity, an industry group opposed to the proposed rules.

The group also questions whether the new rules will make any discernible difference in reducing the effects of climate change.

It's another chapter in a long-running debate that has raged since the EPA announced the proposals last June, aimed at reducing CO2 emissions 30 percent by 2030.

EPA critics question whether the Clean Power Plan is the best way to balance economic realities with potential public health benefits while industry and political leaders in energy states such as coal-rich West Virginia accuse the EPA of overstepping its bounds by using the Clean Air Act to enforce the new rules on individual states.

The regulations would govern the estimated 2,417 fossil-fuel-fired power plants in the United States that account for 39 percent of the nation's CO2 emissions — the largest single source.

NERA Economic Consulting, an economic research firm based in Boston, estimated it would cost between $366 billion and $479 billion over the next 15 years to fully comply with the new regulations, with many of those expenses passed on to energy consumers.

After crunching the numbers for all 50 states plus the District of Columbia, NERA estimated that ratepayers in every state will see electricity prices go up under the EPA regulations during 2020-2029 and that all but seven will see prices rise by 10 percent or more.

During peak years — when electricity usage is at its highest — the NERA study predicts that consumers in 14 states will see potential increases of more than 20 percent.

Utah and Wyoming are two of the hardest-hit states, with the study predicting that Utah ratepayers may see a 24 percent average increase in the next decade, with a potential 26 percent peak-year spike. Wyoming could see a 22 percent average increase, with as much as a 26 percent peak-year increase.

Dr. Robert Shannon Announces Retirement

Manhattan, Kansas. Dr. Robert Shannon, Superintendent of Schools for Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, has submitted his letter of retirement, effective July 1, 2016. Dr. Shannon informed the Board of Education of his upcoming retirement plans last evening at the Board of Education meeting. Dr. Shannon has been the Superintendent of USD 383 since August 1, 2005.

Dr. Robert Shannon,

"It has been my honor to work for this Board and previous Boards for the past 11 years," stated Dr. Shannon. "My respect for your service and commitment to Manhattan-Ogden's children is at the highest level. The professional, talented and caring staff members of Manhattan-Ogden USD 383 have been a pleasure to work with over the years as we moved the District forward for the betterment of our students. I will always be proud of having had the opportunity to work with them."

What About The Slum Renters?

When the renter moved, all 7 rooms looked like this. (Free Press Photos)

Editorial

By Jon A. Brake

In September of 2009 the Manhattan City Commission passed a Residential Rental Inspection Program. It's purpues was to get rid of all the "slum landlords" in Manhattan.

All Apartment Owners were fined paid a fee, employees were hired, cars were purchased and they went to work. Everything went the way it was planned until the Free Press ran an Editorial about how four renter were jail and fined in Court for destroying a Rental Unit.

A new City Commission voted in July 2011 to repeal the program.

Now this new Liberal City Commission is going to look at starting a new Rental Inspection Program.

Commissioners, there are one hundred "Slum Renters" to every (as you call them) Slum Landlord.

What can happen when a landlord gets a $11,000.00 judgement against a Renter? Well, if the Landlord has a $1 and the $11,000 Judgement, he can buy a cup of coffee. (True Story)

Academic Wants Obama to Prosecute Climate Change Skeptics

Kevin Mooney
Heritage Foundation

Taxpayer-funded college professors and researchers who cite climate change to advocate regulations that would raise energy costs for consumers have some explaining to do, congressional investigators say.

A House committee wants to know more about the relationship between taxpayer money received by the academics and their urging of President Obama to use federal racketeering law to go after businesses and other groups that oppose his aggressive agenda against climate change.

The panel's investigators also are curious to hear a George Mason University environmentalist, leader of the publicly supported researchers, explain a growing disparity between computer models showing global warming and fresh scientific evidence suggesting Earth's temperatures have been flat for 18 years.

Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, chairman of the Committee on Science, Space and Technology, cites "serious concerns" in a stern letter to Jagdish Shukla, a professor at George Mason University who specializes in atmospheric, oceanic, and earth studies.

The Daily Signal is the multimedia news organization of The Heritage Foundation. We'll respect your inbox and keep you informed.

Shukla's environmental institute, Smith writes, "appears to be almost fully funded by taxpayer money while simultaneously participating in partisan political activities by requesting a [federal] investigation of companies and organizations that disagree with the Obama administration on climate change."

In a followup letter Oct. 19, Smith asks Shukla for financial documents as part of the congressional investigation.

Smith is correct to be curious about an apparent conflict of interest, free-market energy policy analysts and scientific skeptics who question the validity of climate models told The Daily Signal in interviews.

"As evidence mounts that the dire predictions of catastrophic global warming are not confirmed by climatological observations, the alarmist camp has had to resort to witch hunts," said Bonner Cohen, senior fellow at the National Center for Public Policy Research.

Shukla is among 20 publicly subsidized academics who signed a letter to Obama calling for a probe of "corporations and other organizations that have knowingly deceived the American people about the risks of climate change."

It turns out Shukla reaped tens of millions in climate-related grants from U.S. taxpayers in addition to his university salary.

Shukla, 71, is the founder and former president of the Rockville, Md.-based Institute of Global Environment and Society, a nonprofit that received $63 million in taxpayer funds since 2001, according to financial data compiled by the Washington Free Beacon.

The $63 million accounts for over 98 percent of his environmental institute's revenue in that time. By double-dipping between his university salary and his nonprofit, critics say, Shukla appears to have violated George Mason University's conflict of interest stipulations and rules that federal grant recipients who work for universities are expected to observe.

Steve McIntyre, a statistician noted for challenging the data and methodology used in United Nations climate reports, writes the Climate Audit blog. McIntyre offers a detailed analysis of Shukla's compensation and how it squares with university and government policies.

The India-born Shukla, who joined George Mason's faculty in 1993, made a university salary of $314,000 by 2014, according to Climate Audit.

FHSU College of Education ranked nationally

HAYS, Kan. — The Fort Hays State University College of Education was graded against schools of all sizes and locations and was ranked No. 6 in the nation by the National Council on Teacher Quality, making it the second year in a row it has ranked on the NCTQ assessment.

Of the colleges listed on the NCTQ's 2015 Top 25 "Best Value" U.S. Colleges of Education, FHSU was the only university in the 12-state Midwest Region that stretches from Kansas to North Dakota and east to Ohio and Michigan.

Dr. Paul Adams, College of Education dean, congratulated the all former and current faculty members of the college.

"Great work by the College of Education and especially to the efforts of Tiffany Hester and Adam Holden for laying down the foundation over the last couple of years for this recognition," he said.

Last year, FHSU's history and government was the third-highest ranked secondary education program, and the secondary education program was the 12th-highest ranked elementary education program in the NCTQ "Teacher Prep Review 2014" list.

The NCTQ is a non-profit whose mission is to ensure "that every child has an effective teacher," and provides consumer reports about the quality of teacher education programs. In the past the NCTQ has released its "Teacher Prep Reviews," but this year they also did their Top 25 "Best Value" list.

"While there are an unlimited number of guides to help people buy products, from the right car to the right refrigerator, when it comes to picking the best college of education, one of the most important decisions one can make, people are left to fend for themselves," said Kate Walsh, president of NCTQ.

The council has an extensive examination process that gathers curriculum information from colleges by using materials submitted by universities, homework assignments and by contacting individuals on-campus. It then assigns programs grades ranging from A-F. Of more than 2,300 elementary and secondary programs graded from more than 1,100 colleges and universities, 416 programs across 35 states received a grade of A or B, and FHSU was the only university in Kansas to receive As.

FHSU received an A-minus in elementary and an A in secondary, both of which were further broken down into categories.

Elementary education was judged on admission selectivity, content knowledge, teaching reading, student teaching, classroom management, assessing classroom learning and rigor. The program ranked particularly high on admission selectivity, social studies content knowledge, teaching reading, classroom management and assessing classroom learning.

Secondary education was judged on admission selectivity, content knowledge, student teaching, classroom management, assessing classroom learning and rigor — scoring A's in all but two categories.

For more information on the NCTQ, visit www.nctq.org.

Dodge City among cities cited by groups over imprisonment

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — A group has filed a federal lawsuit against Dodge City and Ford County in western Kansas, contending that they jail people who can't afford to pay fines and that this amounts to a debtors' prison system.

Lawyers from Equal Justice Under Law, a Washington D.C.-based nonprofit that has filed similar lawsuits in other states, and Peter Antosh, a Dodge City attorney, filed the lawsuit last week in Kansas City, Kansas, on behalf of Lawrence J. Martinez.

Martinez was arrested Oct. 20 on suspicion of disorderly conduct. His bail was set at $250 and he was unable to pay it, he wrote in an affidavit included with the court filing. The lawsuit alleges that Martinez was jailed because he was too poor to pay the amount of money set by Dodge City, The Hutchinson News reported (<http://bit.ly/1H6Z0xp>). Martinez was released Oct. 22, according to staff in the Ford County Sheriff office.

The lawsuit, which seeks to halt the practice, says Dodge City has a "wealth-based post-arrest detention scheme" that seeks to jail poor residents "solely because they cannot pay an arbitrary amount of money."

"Those arrestees who are too poor to afford several hundred dollars remain in jail because of their poverty for at least two days, at which time Dodge City typically releases them for free," the lawsuit contends.

City Attorney Brad Ralph said Monday he had not finished reading the complaint. He and Ford County Attorney Natalie Randall did not immediately return messages seeking comment Tuesday.

The nonprofit and other groups have filed similar lawsuits in other states, including Missouri, Mississippi and Alabama, among others. All accuse court systems of ignoring U.S. Supreme Court decisions that say courts must determine whether people have the ability to pay fines before jailing them for nonpayment.

US rental home prices rose at slower pace in September

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. home rental market cooled in September. The slowdown hit major hubs of the energy industry such as Dallas, Houston and Tulsa, while moderating the boom coming in tech centers such as San Francisco, San Jose and Denver.

Real estate data firm Zillow said Tuesday that median rents rose a seasonally adjusted 3.7 percent from a year ago, down from the annual pace of 4.1 percent in August. The slowdown likely reflects the 14.8 percent surge in apartment construction during the first nine months of 2015, as increasing supplies have tempered price appreciation.

Research by the CoStar Group, a real estate marketer, found that 158,000 apartment units are being built this year, the highest level in more than three decades.

Still, rental prices continue to exceed wage growth.

Average hourly earnings have risen just 2.2 percent from a year ago, which means that housing is consuming a larger share of renters' incomes. Meager wage growth, rising rents and climbing home values has led the share of the country renting to climb to 36.6 percent, the highest level since 1967, according to the Commerce Department.

Obamacare Costs Going Up In Kansas

With or Without Subsidies: Providing Relief to Kansas

In 2014, Affordable Care Act (ACA) regulations increased health insurance costs for 334,859 people in Kansas covered by individual or small-employer group policies. Of those, 12 percent received an offsetting subsidy and 88 percent did not. If the Supreme Court strikes down the subsidies, Congress should exempt Kansas from the ACA's costly insurance regulations, giving much needed relief to both groups.

Disentangling the Data on Planned Parenthood Affiliates' Abortion Services and Receipt of Taxpayer Funding

By Jamie Bryan Hall and Roger Severino
Heritage Foundation

Planned Parenthood Federation of America claims that the 665 clinics run by its affiliates provide a "wide range" of health care as justification for taxpayers providing more than 40 percent of their funding, and that abortion is a small proportion of their services. Yet, data show that Planned Parenthood Federation of America is the country's largest abortion provider with affiliates performing more than 300,000 abortions per year, which amounts to approximately one out of every three in the country.

How Does Planned Parenthood Calculate Its Claims About Its Abortion Services?

Although Planned Parenthood Federation of America reportedly requires all affiliates to have at least one clinic that performs abortions,[4] Planned Parenthood's annual report does not identify the number of affiliated clinics that provide abortion services or how much of Planned Parenthood's total revenue results from abortions. Instead, the report claims that abortions account for only 3 percent of the medical services Planned Parenthood affiliates provide.

How does the Planned Parenthood annual report arrive at the 3 percent figure? The calculation counts each "discrete clinical interaction" as a separate "medical service," meaning simple tests or routine provision of birth control are given the same weight as surgical or chemical abortions. For example, if a woman in the course of a year receives a free condom, a pregnancy test, a sexually transmitted infection (STI) test, and an abortion, Planned Parenthood would say abortion was only 25 percent of the services provided.

Even with Planned Parenthood's broad definition of "medical service," data reported in the organization's annual report suggest that roughly 12 percent of people who received a service from Planned Parenthood affiliates received an abortion during the reporting year.

Despite a nearly 20 percent decline in the number of abortions in the country between 2000 and 2011,[8] the number of abortions Planned Parenthood performed during that time increased from 197,070 to 333,964, thereby more than doubling its share of the abortion market from 15 percent in 2000 to 32 percent in 2011, the latest year for which national data are available.

Planned Parenthood affiliates perform about 20 abortions for every prenatal care visit and about 200 abortions for every adoption referral based on the approximately 300,000 abortions they perform each year.

Planned Parenthood Federation of America's Government Subsidies

Combined federal, state, and local government funding has increased from $203 million (30 percent of Planned Parenthood's consolidated revenue) during its fiscal year 2000-2001 to $528 million (41 percent of revenue) during 2013-2014. [Planned Parenthood's annual report does not provide a breakdown of federal versus state funding or the exact government grants, contracts, and reimbursements it receives.

A Congressional Budget Office (CBO) analysis released in September 2015, however, shows that the organization's affiliates received approximately $60 million of taxpayer money under Title X of the Public Health Services Act, and $390 million through federal payments under Medicaid in 2013. The federal government generally provides reimbursement for 90 percent of the cost of "family planning services" and products covered under Medicaid, while states provide the remaining 10 percent.

Under Title X grants, abortion providers are able to prorate expenses such as staff and waiting rooms, covering a portion of the fixed costs of the abortion-related staff and facilities. According to the Guttmacher Institute, Because Title X grants offer up-front funding to providers (rather than payment after-the-fact, as with Medicaid or private insurance), the program provides essential infrastructure support that allows health centers providing family planning services to keep their doors open for clients. Up-front funding helps supply a cash-flow cushion for providers who are often operating on tight and uncertain budgets.

In addition, federal regulations require that "[e]ach project supported under [Title X] must...[n]ot provide abortion as a method of family planning," but also "must":

(i) Offer pregnant women the opportunity to be provided information and counseling regarding each of the following options:

(A) Prenatal care and delivery; (B) Infant care, foster care, or adoption; and (C) Pregnancy termination.

(ii) If requested to provide such information and counseling, provide neutral, factual information and nondirective counseling on each of the options, and referral upon request, except with respect to any option(s) about which the pregnant woman indicates she does not wish to receive such information and counseling.

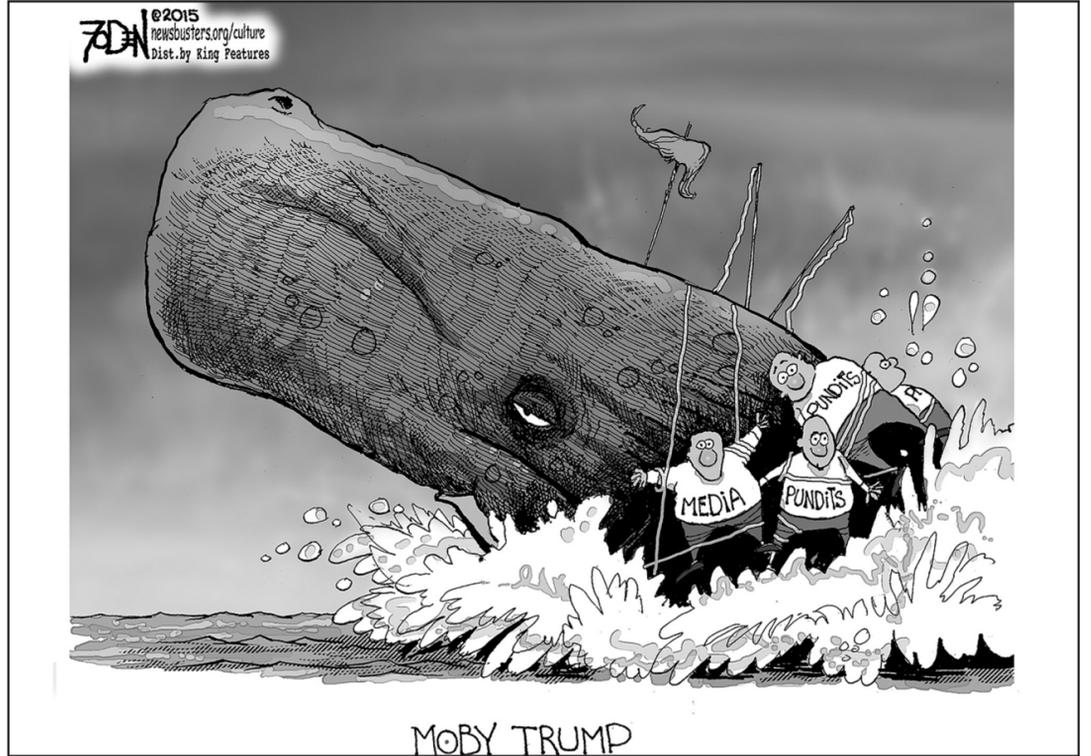

Planned Parenthood affiliates therefore must offer every pregnant woman they serve under a Title X grant the opportunity to receive information about abortion. If any pregnant woman requests an abortion referral, the affiliate must provide such a referral, thereby using tax dollars to help grow or sustain the abortion industry.

Redirect Funding for Planned Parenthood to Other Health Care Centers

To ensure that taxpayers are not forced to subsidize America's number one abortion provider, Congress should make Planned Parenthood affiliates ineligible to receive either Medicaid reimbursements or Title X grants if they continue to perform abortions. Taxpayer money from these programs should instead be redirected to the more than 9,000 federally qualified health center sites throughout the country that provide comprehensive primary health care for those in need without entanglement in abortion.

K-State Rally Falls Short at Texas, 23-9

KSU Sports Information

AUSTIN, Texas -- Kansas State's rally from an early deficit fell short late in the second half, as Texas posted a 23-9 win on a rainy Saturday in front of 88,283 at DKR Texas-Memorial Stadium.

The Wildcats (3-4, 0-4 Big 12) were down 16-0 midway through the second quarter before scoring nine straight points, including a 7-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Joe Hubener to wide receiver Dominique Heath just before halftime, to close the gap. A fourth-quarter touchdown by the Longhorns put the game out of reach.

Texas (3-4, 2-2 Big 12) did its damage on the ground, rushing for 274 yards and three touchdowns, as running back Johnathan Gray had 103 yards on 18 carries. Backup quarterback Tyrone Swoopes scored all three of the Longhorns touchdowns on seven carries for 50 yards. Quarterback Jerrod Heard was 10-for-15 on the day for 99 yards. Heard also added 61 yards on the ground on 15 carries.

Kansas State doubled its offensive production from last week, putting up 242 total yards, including 135 yards on the ground. Running back Charles Jones led all rushers with career-high 122 total yards on 18 attempts. It was Jones' first 100-yard game of his career.

Hubener went 10-for-22 on the day for 97 yards with a touchdown and an interception. Backup quarterback Kody Cook was 1-for-2 in the game for 10 yards. Deante Burton led all Wildcat receivers with 39 yards. Heath added 23 yards on two receptions, including the Wildcats' only touchdown of

On defense, senior defensive end Travis Britz set a new career high with nine tackles and four tackles for loss. The four tackles for loss are the most by a Wildcat in a single game since 2006. Redshirt freshman Kendall Adams recorded a career-high seven tackles in his first career start.

Texas scored on its opening possession of the game, taking the ball 42 yards on 15 plays to set up a 28-yard field goal from Nick Rose to give the Longhorns a 3-0 lead. All 42 yards on the drive came on the ground to set up the field goal.

The Longhorns strung together another long drive on their next possession as Swoopes scored from 1-yard out, capping a 13-play, 80-yard drive to extend the lead to 10-0.

D'Onta Foreman rushed for 28 yards, including a 15-yard run, to set up the score.

Swoopes scored his second touchdown of the day from two yards out on Texas' third possession, but a failed rush gave the Longhorns a 16-0 lead. The play was highlighted by a 46-yard scamper by Gray, who went for 63 yards on the drive.

K-State scored its first points of the game with 32 seconds remaining in the first half as a Hubener connected with Heath on a 7-yard touchdown pass. Despite an unsuccessful two-point conversion, the Wildcats pulled within 10 points of the Longhorns at 16-6 at halftime.

The Wildcats pulled even closer in the third quarter, as placekicker Jack Cantele connected on a 36-yard field goal to make the score 16-9. Jones rushed 26 of the drives 44 yards to set up the field goal.

Texas scored the only points of the fourth quarter, as Swoopes punched it in from 10 yards out for his third score of the game to seal the victory. Swoopes accounted for all 52 yards on the 3-play drive.

Kansas State returns home on Thursday, November 5 as it hosts No. 2 Baylor. The Thursday-night kickoff is set for 6:30 p.m. and will be aired on Fox Sports 1.

The Offensive line was doing their job of protecting Quarterback Joe Hubener (8) on this play.

Oklahoma State rolls past Kansas 58-10

By JOHN TRANCHINA Associated Press

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Backup quarterback J.W. Walsh ran for three touchdowns and passed for two more to help No. 14 Oklahoma State defeat Kansas 58-10 on Saturday, hours after a fatal crash near the stadium put a harrowing halt on the school's homecoming festivities.

Three people were killed and 34 injured when a woman suspected of driving under the influence plowed a car into a crowd at the homecoming parade. Oklahoma State considered postponing the game, but in the end, opted to go ahead with it.

The decision was made that we're going to play, and we're going to remember the victims at the game," OSU President Burns Hargis said at a news conference after the crash. "We're going to move forward, but we will remember what happened today."

The flag at Boone Pickens Stadium was lowered to half-staff and Cowboys players knelt down on the field and prayed before the coin flip.

Even as the game began, some of the bodies remained at the scene of the crash less than three blocks away from the stadium. National Guard troops kept watch as officials with the Red Cross and state medical examiner's office continued their work.

Hundreds of fans wearing the school's bright orange and black colors walked by the intersection as they headed to the game. Some lingered to look at the aftermath: water bottles, blankets, lawn chairs and other items strewn all over the intersection. A gray car with a smashed side and shattered windshield remained at the scene, as did a crumpled motorcycle.

Against the somber backdrop, the Cowboys dominated early against Kansas. They quickly forced Kansas into a 3-and-out on the contest's opening possession. Then they marched 70 yards on eight plays, taking a 7-0 lead on Walsh's 3-yard TD run with 2:50 gone in the first quarter.

Walsh made it 14-0 with 2:47 remaining in the first on a 1-yard run, holding the ball out over the pylon as he dove down the sideline on a third-and-goal situation.

Mason Rudolph completed 20 of 26 passes for 305 yards and had a touchdown for Oklahoma State (7-0, 4-0 Big 12). Kansas (0-7, 0-4) lost its 10th straight game overall and 36th on the road.

Overall, Walsh gained 24 yards on six rushes and was 5 for 5 passing for 68 yards, before freshman Taylor Cornelius took over late in the third.

Ryan Willis was 12 of 31 passing for 191 yards and one touchdown, with two interceptions, for Kansas (0-7, 0-4), which lost its 10 straight contest overall and 36th in a row on the road.

Sympathy came from all over college football on social media, where coaches, players and alums offered tweets of support. In Norman, the University of Oklahoma held a moment of silence for its rival before kicking off against Texas Tech.

Oklahoma Gov. Mary Fallin, an OSU grad who was in attendance at the game, agreed with the decision to play.

"I think it is important for Oklahomans to be able to support each other, especially when our hearts are broken and we're hurting," Fallin said. "This is one of the ways we can be together and support each other during that time."

Some fans left early, and had to walk again past the intersection, which was not yet clear. Sophomore Sam Trautman was in the crowd with friends, and noted the silence as the victims were remembered before kickoff.

"Normally, you can't hear and if you want to talk you have to yell," he said. "You could hear the people outside ordering their food from the concession stand."

Backup QB boosts Texas to 23-9 win over Kansas State

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tyrone Swoopes has reinvented himself, and the Texas Longhorns are the beneficiaries of that transformation.

Swoopes, a junior demoted from starting quarterback one game into the season, became a situational player employed by coach Charlie Strong primarily in short-yardage situations.

On Saturday, the 244-pound Swoopes scored three touchdowns and the Longhorns defeated Kansas State 23-9 in game played in a heavy rain-storm.

"I've always told Tyrone, even when we made that change . 'listen, there is no reason for you to hang your head,' " Strong said. "You're still going to be part of it, and you never know when you're going to show up."

Swoopes, the starter last season, and for the Longhorns' 2015 opener at Notre Dame, scored his first two touchdowns Saturday on short runs, but his last one, which secured victory, covered 10 yards with 1:47 remaining. Swoopes ran for 13 and 29 yards on the previous two plays.

Two weeks earlier, Swoopes ran for a touchdown and threw for another in an upset of Oklahoma — both short-yardage situations near the goal line.

Late in the game Saturday, Strong inserted Swoopes for an entire drive that started at the Texas 48 after an interception by Longhorn safety Dylan Haines. Swoopes carried the ball on all three plays, gaining 52 yards.

Swoopes, a somewhat timid runner last season, now plows over defenders. His package of short-yardage plays is named 18 Wheeler; he wears jersey No. 18.

"I enjoy it," Swoopes said. "It's fun."

Texas (3-4, 2-2 Big 12) rushed for 274 yards, maintaining a strength the Longhorns established with 313 yards on the ground — its most since 2013 — during a victory against Oklahoma on Oct. 10.

Tailback Johnathan Gray led Texas with 103 yards against Kansas State (3-4, 0-4), which has lost four consecutive games for the first time since 2005.

Texas fans were few and far between at Saturday's game. There was a hard rain all day and the stands showed it. The Football Game also cost the Free Press: $500.00 to $600.00 for travel, motels and food. It also cost the Free Press more than $400.00 for it's backup Cannon Camera which does not work because in getting just a few photos, it must have gotten wet. (Photos by Jon A. Brake)

Charles Jones, Kansas State's junior running back, rushed for a career-best 122 yards. Jones gained 87 in the second half.

The only conventional pass that Heard threw in the half was incomplete.

The Longhorns made their intentions known right away, running the ball on nearly every play while building a 16-6 halftime lead.

Texas dominated the half until Kansas State responded with a 78-yard touchdown drive that the Wildcats finished with 32 seconds remaining. Dominique Heath scored on a 7-yard pass from Joe Hubener.

Texas gained 188 yards on the ground in the half, including 89 by Gray and 73 from quarterback Jerrod Heard. Gray set up one touchdown with a 46-yard burst along the right side in the second quarter.

The touchdown snapped a streak in which Kansas State was outscored 78-0 by TCU, Oklahoma and Texas.

Hubener completed 10 of 22 for 97 yards. He was sacked five times.

Swoopes scored both touchdowns in the half, from 1 and 2 yards.

Heard completed 10 of 15 for 99 yards, but only a few of his completions were downfield in the rain.

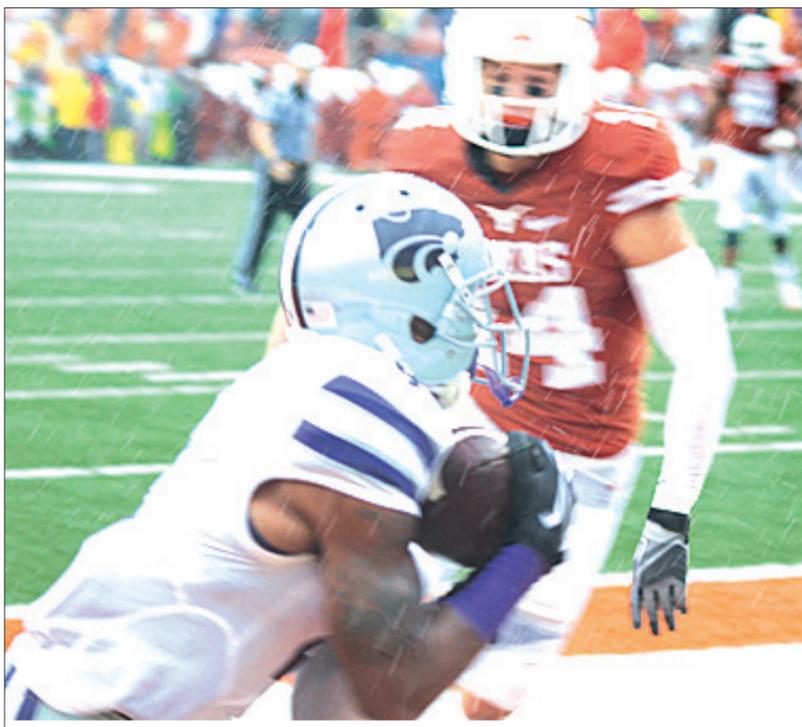

Heard attempted just four passes in the half, three of them short, underhand flips to wide receiver Daje Johnson on sweeps that were more like handoffs.

"There was a moment in the second quarter where the ball really did feel like five pounds," Heard said.

Kansas State Runningback Charles Jones (24) gets around this lineman and picks up 5-yards for the Wildcats.

Wildcat Dominique Heath takes a pass from Joe Hubener in the endzone for the only K-State touchdown.

Dominique Heath (4) and Joe Hubener are congratulated after scoring the touchdown by team mates.
